Date: 1874

Location: Adjacent to Interstate 81, Staunton Vicinity, Augusta County, Virginia.

Built by: Valley Railroad Company.

Owned by: Originally; Valley Railroad Company.
Presently; Virginia Department of Highways.

Significance: The railroad viaduct near Staunton Virginia is an outstanding example of 19th century stone masonry construction. It is a well preserved reminder of the Valley Railroad and stands as a scenic landmark to passing motorists along Interstate 81.

Transmitted by: Dan Clement, 1983. For those seeking more information about Folly Mills Creek Viaduct, the Valley Railroad, or the Railroads of Virginia a list of sources is included on the next two pages.
